Assessment using DOC criteria for conservation status

The conservation status of New Zealand fungi remains under review. Two species were collected on the foray which were previously threat listed, Russula inquinata and Hygrophoropsis umbriceps. Russula inquinata is now known to be quite common. Hygrophoropsis umbriceps was a name used incorrectly by Egon Horak to refer to an undescribed species related to the Pagoda Fungus (Podoserpula pusio) and the real Hygrophoropsis umbriceps an unrelated species re-discovered recently by Wanda Daley. In fact both these species are rarely collected. On the foray we collected the Horak version.

Taxa not previously recorded in New Zealand or currently listed as absent

The FUNNZ foray lists should not be taken as evidence for the presence of a taxon in New Zealand. There are many reasons why some collections may be mis-determined whilst others will be genuine first records. Where FUNNZ collections are lodged in a national collection they may be re-examined and re-assessed. The status of names as they appear on the NZFUNGI2 website should always be considered the best available information on the presence/absence of a species in New Zealand.

Cortinarius magellanicus - in NZ usually C. lubricanescens

Collopus epipterygius - NZ material will be the variable Mycena subviscosa

Daldinia concentrica - likely one of our indigenous spp

Ganoderma applanatum - a species complex

Lycoperdon perlatum - name used in a broad sense

Mycena pura - will be M. vinacea or M. fuscovinacea

Oudemansiella radicata - likely one of the Australasian look-alikes, probably H. mundryi

Puccinia junci - a name with multiple homonyms, none previously applied to NZ material

Stereum ostrea f. galcotii - possibly a slip for S. ostrea

Xylaria filiformis - name used in a broad sense
